Translation note:

There are two versions of the chapter—the digital magazine edition and the printed/paperback edition, and the printed version contains amended lines by the publisher. To avoid confusion, we will be using the printed edition in the main translation. Below is the list of differences between the two versions.

Page 12, last panel:

Paperback: "Yes, I promise." In the end, he too left.

Digital: And then, fifty years later, he left.

Page 16, fourth panel:

Paperback: Mutants can only be killed by other mutants.

Digital: "Mutants can only be killed by other mutants."

Paperback: What a creepy bastard...

Digital: He really came— That creepy bastard.

Page 23, first panel:

Paperback version: -One month later-

Digital: The library finally reopened a week later.

Page 23, last panel:

Paperback: I have to pay a late fee because of you!

Digital: I have to pay a late fee because you suddenly closed for a week!!!

Note: Putting aside the unexplainable difference in time frames between the digital and print versions of the chapter, based on the digital version's "The library finally reopened one week later", it would be more clear to say "The library finally reopened one month after the unannounced holiday", as in, after the whole bit where Mami becomes unconscious after being drained by Carbell. Since the paperback version only says "One month later", we've changed it to what you see in our release as a compromise between the two.

Paperback: Don't worry, you don't have to pay in this case.

Digital: It's the library's fault this time so you don't have to pay the late fee.

Page 32, last panel:

Paperback: Somewhere that used to be— A botanical garden?

Digital: Maybe— An abandoned garden?

Page 34, second panel:

Paperback: -- Are you a Gourmet?

Digital: ... Who are you? Are you a Gourmet?

Page 35, first panel:

In the paperback version his name is Fall, but in the digital version he's given the name Evan (or Iván).
